Kaley Cuoco

Ten years into her run as Penny on CBS' The Big Bang Theory, Kaley Cuoco is a certified pop-culture icon. Twice named Favorite TV Comedy Actress in the People's Choice Awards, Cuoco has also appeared in commercials and movies, earned a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame, and hosted awards shows. She has also been among the entertainment world's most vocal animal advocates. Outside of her work with the Humane Society of the United States — which named her 2015 Humane Horseman of the Year — Cuoco has hosted FOX's All-Star Dog Rescue Celebration and routinely shared her love of shelter dogs in the press and on social media.

Victoria Stilwell

Victoria Stilwell has perhaps done more to advance positive-reinforcement dog training than anyone in the world. The star of Animal Planet's It's Me or the Dog, Stilwell has also written two best-selling books on dog training, is editor-in-chief of positively.com, and distributes a Positively Podcast. She is particularly drawn to rescue animals, and her Victoria Stilwell Foundation provides both funding and expertise to small rescue organizations.

Linda Blair

Since earning an Academy Award nomination as possessed 12-year-old Regan MacNeil in The Exorcist, Linda Blair has starred in it all: full-length and short films, Broadway productions, TV. But through the years, she's become as well known for her advocacy for the environment, health issues, and human and animal rights. Her Linda Blair Worldheart Foundation shelters rescued dogs at its California facility and raises awareness of animal welfare issues around the world.

Patrick Fabian

Having taken on roles from one end of the acting spectrum (Saved by the Bell: The College Years) to the other (The Last Exorcism), Patrick Fabian racked up 100-plus IMDB credits over his first two decades as an actor. But he entered a new level of celebrity in 2015 as Howard Hamlin on AMC's Breaking Bad spinoff, Better Call Saul. Having had his life changed by a rescued shepherd/Lab mix, Fabian has long served as a celebrity ambassador for Best Friends Animal Society.
